TORREZ WILSON, CONFERENCE & PROGRAM SERVICES, GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY WILLIAM GUY, SENIOR EVENT SERVICES SPECIALIST, GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY

This session focuses on the benefits of student employment and will show you how you can use your student employment experience to land a job after graduation. Learn about the skills that employers are looking for and how you can build those skills to prepare you for your career after graduation.

Building a Community that Builds Without You

JEFFERY JOHN, LEAD DIRECTOR UGAHACKS 7 AND UGAHACKS 8

Acting as a yearly organization leaves long gaps of time where our target community is isolated from our organizers, and so it's a strong priority for us to serve as a catalyst for a community that continues without us, until our next event. During this presentation, participants will gain insight into branding, passive and active engagement strategies, collaborative ideas, and cultural perspectives from event interviews.

Quality over Quantity: Building the extraordinary teams you want with the resources you already have

MAGGIE FITZSIMMONS, COORDINATOR FOR FACILITIES COURTNEY BROWN. COORDINATOR FOR FACILITIES

Knowing yourself, your team, and how to navigate the world around you leads to extraordinary results. Explore the ways you can make an impact as a leader with the resources you already have with the teams around you.

Fundraising Fundamentals: Developing and Communicating Your "Why"

SARAH URBANSKI, GRADUATE ASSISTANT FOR STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

During this presentation, participants will develop their "why" statements and learn how to translate that message into funds raised. Whether you're fundraising to support your organization or to support a charity partner, these best practices will help your organization grow your next fundraiser.

Inclusive Leadership: Driving Organizational Performance through Diversity

KARIS HILL, SENIOR COORDINATOR OF LEADERSHIP

Leadership in the 21st century demands organizations to optimize diversity by leveraging the power of inclusion. By prioritizing diversity and inclusion your team will be able to perform better and develop innovative strategies for engagement. This interactive presentation will give participants tips on how to become an inclusive leader.

Written in the Stars: Charting Your Relationship to Leadership

ALEXANDRA MASTORAKIS, GRADUATE ASSISTANT FOR STUDENT ACTIVITIES NICHOLAS TROTTER, GRADUATE ASSISTANT FOR ARCH SOCIETY

Self-awareness is a major part of developing one's identity as a leader and teammate. Using the guiding analogy of natal charts and the zodiac, participants will learn more about the relationship between self-assessments and self awareness, as well as how they relate to the development of one's personal leadership philosophy.

VIRTUAL PRESENTATIONS IMARCH 16

DOs and DON'Ts of Virtual Programming

NOAH BAKER. SENIOR COORDINATOR OF STUDENT ACTIVITIES

This presentation is designed for anyone wanting to learn more about providing campus programs in a virtual space, the various tools that can be used for online programming, and some of the lessons that we have learned from programming during COVID-19 protocol.

Dismantling Dysfunction to Build Better Teams

JACKIE PHILLIPS. SENIOR COORDINATOR OF STUDENT ENGAGEMENT

This presentation will provide an overview of Patrick Lencioni's The Five Dysfunctions of a Team and discuss why teams fail to work together for the collective good of an organization. This session will discuss strategies for helping teams overcome these problems and provide real-life examples and group discussions.

Battling "Bossy": How Women Can Take Control of Their Leadership Journey

ABBI FLAGG, GRADUATE ASSISTANT FOR LEADERSHIP

Despite now making up the majority of the undergraduate population, women continue to be underrepresented in leadership across most professional and academic fields. In this session, participants will discuss the systemic barriers preventing access to leadership opportunities, the value of diverse leadership teams, and how they can practice agency in their leadership development as students.

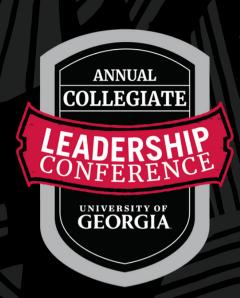

Leaving your Legacy: Succession Planning & Transition Tips

LORI CRAWFORD, ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF LEADERSHIP

Does your organization find itself "reinventing the wheel" time and time again? Set your organization up for success by creating a transition plan that includes a shared vision and opportunities to cultivate leadership in others along the way. Participants will be introduced to resources including a sample transition meeting agenda, transition checklist, and SOAR analysis exercise.
